

TECH SURAKSHA PROSPECTUS

In turn making you responsible to make good, the loss suffered by the third party. The laws now days have been constantly evolving, by way of judicial interpretations and amendments, to become one of the most important socio-economic legislations for the protection of third party interests. The loss determination process is through legal proceedings which are very costly in terms of money, time and can deprive the business of vital resources which can be used for Core business activity.

Networking and information technology companies, electronics manufacturers, technology consultants, and telecommunications firms all require such coverage. Because technology companies are at the forefront of innovation, unforeseen or unanticipated failures sometimes occur. Without E&O insurance, hardware, software and telecommunications companies are putting the longevity of their business at risk.
